SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 2013

www.sfpoa.org

By Martin Halloran,
President SFPOA

On the morning of June 7, 2013 I, along with the rest of the membership, received the election results from the first Tentative Agreement. Clearly I was disappointed that the TA was not ratified. Even though it did not pass by a very small margin, I still felt as though I had failed the membership. I was also disappointed knowing that members of the Negotiating Committee worked diligently and selflessly on this effort, and spent many long hours of their own time working on an agreement. That committee did a fantastic job, and I offer my sincere thanks to them for their dedication to the membership of the POA. Regardless of the outcome, the membership had spoken.

What caught me completely and totally off guard was the fact that 42% of POA members did not even bother to vote. I realize that I am the new President, and perhaps the Board of Directors and I failed to get the message out there, but I just could not figure out why members would not want to have a say in their economic future, especially when this will affect not only themselves, but also their families.

Online voting has been in place at the POA for several years now. Members only need to log onto the POA website at <http://www.sfpoa.org> to cast a vote. After entering your password, you are just four clicks away from casting your vote. It's fast, it's easy, and it's important. For non-tech, rotary-telephone, pager-carrying, head-in-the-sand members, such as myself; even I was able to get through the online voting in less than two minutes! This voting process is so much easier than the old paper ballots that required two envelopes, the member's signatures, and snail mail delivery through the U.S. Postal Service. I spoke with one younger member who told me that he voted on his iPhone while he was vacationing in Europe. He said, "Yeah Marty, it was no problem."

Well, the membership will now have one more opportunity to vote on a new Tentative Agreement (TA). By now all members should have seen the new TA between the City and County of San Francisco and the San Francisco

Police Officers Association. Members from the Executive Board and the Negotiating Committee have visited a number of stations and assignments and have held informational meetings at the 6th floor auditorium at the Hall Of Justice. Your representative on the Board of Directors should also have addressed your line-ups and briefed you regarding this TA. The complete language of the TA along with an informational video, from me, to the members is also available on the POA website.

At the Emergency Board meeting on June 26, 2013, the Board of Directors, through a unanimous vote, strongly endorsed a "Yes" vote from the membership for this Tentative Agreement. The Executive Board and the Negotiating Committee concurs with the Board of Directors and also strongly encourages a "Yes" vote for this TA. These are your elected representatives on the Board of Directors, and I believe that they are making an educated and smart decision. They are looking out for your wellbeing, so take just a few moments to ensure these benefits for your future.

The vote for ratification will be in the hands of the membership. The vote will commence on Friday, July 5th at 0800 hours, and will conclude on Friday, July 12th at 0800 hours.

All formal and informal surveys that I have reviewed over the past several months show that members of the SFPD are approximately 20% ahead of our main comparable agencies (Oakland PD & San Jose PD) in Northern California, and approximately 34% ahead of the ten largest law enforcement agencies in the state in wages and benefits. A "YES" vote will ensure that we remain the top paid in the state through 2018 based on the wage increases in the TA. A "YES" vote will also guarantee that the many benefits we have secured in previous contracts will also remain intact through 2018. Now that the Executive Board and I, the Board of Directors, and the Negotiating Committee have gotten the message out to the members, I am confident that you will make the right decision for yourselves and your families. This is our last bite at the apple, so exercise your rights. Vote!

Officers Carry the "Flame of Hope" Through Our City

By Ray Padmore

When we were needed we were there....Members of the San Francisco Police Department once again demonstrated their resilience, teamwork, and sportsmanship. On Monday, June 24th, amongst the hustle of the shoppers and tourist at Union Square, emerged a few officers, poised to represent their District Stations and our Department in the Annual Law Enforcement Torch Run benefiting Special Olympics.

The event began with the singing of the National Anthem, sung by Briana Oakley (Daughter of Inspector Nelly Gordon), Chief Suhr welcomed and thanked everyone for their participation, lit the torch and we were on our way.

This year, for the first time in many years, we had the honor of having the 237th Recruit Class participate with us in the run. The Torch traveled almost nine miles through our great city before returning to Union Square. Through our collective efforts we have impacted the lives of almost 16,000 athletes with intellectual disabilities, who will be able to participate in 180 competitions throughout the year in 12 Olympic type sports, all at no cost.

Many thanks to The San Francisco Police Credit Union, San Francisco Police Foundation, Rotary Club International, Lions Club, and our own San Francisco Police Officers Association for their sponsorship. I would also like to thank Ted's Market and Deli for a great lunch.

Minutes of the June 17, 2013 SFPOA Emergency Board Meeting*

Note: Excused were President Halloran, Vice President Montoya, and Secretary Nevin. Sergeant-at-Arms Valdez directed Editor Ray Shine to record the minutes of the meeting.

1. Sergeant-at-Arms (SA) Valdez called the meeting to order at 1201 hours.

2. SA Valdez led the members in the Pledge of Allegiance.

3. SA Valdez conducted roll call.

4. SA Valdez explained the necessity of the meeting, and advised the members of a sudden family emergency that called President Halloran away.

5. SA Valdez referred the members to a handout prepared earlier in the morning by President Halloran. That handout outlined a possible counter-offer that the POA might
- propose to the city following the membership’s vote not to ratify the Tentative Agreement initially agreed to by the POA Negotiating Committee and representatives from the office of Mayor Ed Lee.

6. SA Valdez opened a discussion about the failed vote and other matters related to the members’ concerns regarding the aforementioned TA.

7. POA General Counsel Gregg Adam addressed the board regarding the state of negotiations and where further talks might be focused. He also discussed a possible timeline for securing a second TA with the Office of the Mayor. Mr. Adam reminded the members that even an agreed-to and ratified TA would still need to be approved by the Board of Supervisors, which would require two full readings before that board could vote on an agreement.

8. SA Valdez took questions and comments from the board and from the floor. A robust discussion ensued. Among those commenting or responding to questions were former POA President Gary Delagnes, POA Election Committee Chair Joe McFadden, and many active-duty members who were in attendance.

9. Representative Landi (Co. K) made McFadden aware of at least one retiree who had cast his unauthorized ratification vote on-line. McFadden stated that he would look into that matter.

10. SA Valdez requested a motion to approve the possible counter-offer and to recommend it to the membership prior to the POA Executive Board and Negotiating Committee formally proposing it to the Mayor’s Office. Following more robust discussion, no motion was made. Instead, it was announced that the possible counter-offer would be discussed further and possibly voted on at the regularly monthly Board of Directors meeting scheduled for Wednesday, June 19, 2013. In the interim two days, unit rep’s would have an opportunity to educate his or her members regarding the situation with the possible counter-offer and presentation to the full membership. Unit rep’s were also encouraged to work diligently to dispel rumors and other false information regarding the original TA.

11. SA Valdez adjourned the meeting at 1352 hours.

\ These minutes will not be adopted by the Board of Directors until the next General Membership meeting. Corrections and amendments might be made prior to a vote to enter the minutes into the permanent record. All corrections and/or amendments will be published in the succeeding issue of the Journal.*

2. SA Valdez led the members in the Pledge of Allegiance.

4. President Halloran advised the members that the discussion of Brady Issues would be removed from the announced agenda due to sickness of Mr. Russ Guintini. The address and discussion will be rescheduled.
5. President Halloran expressed his gratitude for the many messages of condolence that he and members of his family have received following the sudden death of his father, Coleman Halloran, on the morning of June 18, 2013.
6. President Halloran introduced to the members Steve Kawa, Chief of Staff to Mayor Ed Lee, who was present to discuss the TA that was not ratified by the membership, and to answer questions and concerns about that issue with the Board of Directors.
7. Following the aforementioned introduction and a brief career

- history of Mr. Kawa, President Halloran opened the floor to questions for Mr. Kawa about the defeated TA.
8. After President Halloran and others thanked him for appearing before the Board and helping to clear up points of misunderstanding, Mr. Kawa departed.
  9. SA Valdez asked Retired Captain John Ehrlich and his guest – a non-member – to please vacate the room and reschedule his BALEAF agenda item for the next meeting.
  10. Following the departure of Mr. Kawa from the building, President Halloran opened a discussion about the possibility that the POA Negotiating Committee propose a possible counter-offer to the Office of the Mayor at a point in the near future. POA General Counsel Gregg Adam, former POA President Gary Delagnes, Vice President Tony Montoya, SA Joe Valdez, and POA Election Committee Chair Joe McFadden facilitated the discussion. A lengthy and robust discussion ensued.
  11. Representative Gordon (Co. I) made a motion as proxy for excused Representative Evans (HQ) that the Board direct the POA Negotiating Committee to propose a counter-offer to be presented to the Office of the Mayor that is based - on the possible counter-offer posed by President Halloran at the Emergency Board Meeting of June 17, 2013. The motion received a second from Representative Silver (Invst). A discussion on the motion ensued. Following said discussion, and a ruling from POA Parliamentarian Mike Hebel that a motion cannot be made by proxy, Representative Gordon withdrew the motion.

12. Representative Gordon (Co. I) made a motion that the Board direct the POA Negotiating Committee to propose a counter-offer to be presented to the Office of the Mayor that is based on the possible counter-offer posed by President Halloran at the Emergency Board Meeting of June 17, 2013. - Following a short discussion, the maker withdrew the motion.

Montoya advised existing representatives from those units to advise their members that nominations for unit representative may be presented in writing to Secretary Nevin prior to the July 17, 2013 Board meeting, or nominations can be made from the floor at that meeting. Once nominations have been made and accepted, on-line voting will be scheduled at the respective units. Hearing no other New Business, VP Montoya closed the subject.
  20. Representative Kirwan (Airport) requested that a moment of silence be observed in honor of Coleman Halloran, deceased father of President Halloran. VP Montoya led the members in that tribute.

WIDOWS’ AND ORPHANS’ Aid Association

PO Box 880034, San Francisco, CA 94188-0034 ♦ Established 1878 ♦ Telephone 415.681.3660

June 12, 2013

The monthly meeting of the Widows and Orphans Aid Association for April was called to order by President Bob Mattox on Tuesday June 11, 2013 at 1:40 pm. The meeting was held at our current business location of 850 Bryant St. in Room 150.

Roll Call of Officers:

President Bob Mattox, Vice President Al Luenow, Secretary Mark McDonough, Treasurer Dean Taylor, Trustees John Centurioni, Sally Foster, John Keane, and Joe Reilly were present. President Mattox opened the meeting with the Pledge of Allegiance.

President Mattox briefly suspended the normal order of business for a vote on the vacant Trustee chair. A motion was made by Trustee Centurioni and seconded by Trustee Foster for the vote, which passed with no objection. A vote was held by the Trustees (4), which resulted in electing Leroy Lindo to the vacant position. Leroy Lindo was then appointed by President Mattox as our new Trustee.

Approval of the monthly minutes:

A motion was made by Vice President Luenow to approve the minutes of our meeting on May 15, 2013. Trustee Keane seconded the motion, which passed with no objections.

Receiving Applications for new members:

Secretary McDonough reported receiving 44 new applications from Academy Class 237 on May 30, 2013. McDonough stated he will respond to the San Francisco Police Academy on June 17th to address Class#236 for new applications. Trustee Foster will assist McDonough. Class numbers 234 and 235 are nearing their probation phase, and permanent membership.

Suspensions and Reinstatements:

The goal of the WOAA is to provide a generous benefit to the family of a deceased member. We actively recruit new members of each SFPD Academy Recruit Class to increase the strength of our association, and support the Association Fund. We at the WOAA work diligently each year to maintain our veteran membership. Phone calls, emails, and Journal Articles report our efforts to reach out and request our members to pay their yearly dues. It is at this time that I regret to have to place the names of our unpaid members in a six-month period, in this article as a ‘Notice of Suspension’. I apologize to any members who has sent their dues either during this month, or simultaneous to this article. It is mandated by our Constitution and By-Laws to suspend members who have not yet submitted their dues in 2013. A member will stay on suspension until dues and a subsequent charge are paid. A member will be dropped from our membership if the dues and charge are not received by December 31, 2013. If your name appears below, please contact us at the number provided (415 681-3660), and we will resolve this issue. Occasionally we have incorrect contact information of members, primarily retired members, and would appreciate any assistance in contacting the membership. If you know any of the following members and believe that they are outside the necessary contact, please help us locate them. The following members are placed on WOAA suspension as of July1, 2013 pending payments of dues and an additional late charge.

We have six(6) members of the #227 Academy Class who need to send in their dues ASAP.

We have seven members who are listed as being retired since February of 2013. These members will be in jeopardy of suspension in the coming months if their dues are not received in the 6 month period. We request dues to be paid every January. I have received complaints from retired members that they did not receive a bill. We are working diligently to correct any mistakes that may have occurred. I am scheduled to address the Retirement Seminar in October to explain the process to members who are nearing retirement. If you retired this year since February, subtract the direct deposit amount that you have paid before retirement, and subtract that amount from our yearly dues of $72.00. Send us the remainder for this year. In January, send us a check for $72.00, or set up a direct deposit through your financial institution. Our goal on this announcement to retain our members. Again, any assistance in contacting these members will be greatly appreciated. Thank you, and we apologize for any mistakes or confusion that may have been created on our end.

Communications and Bills:

Trustee Centurioni made a motion to pay the bills. Reilly seconded the motion which passed with no objections.

Re: Communications Dispatcher of the Month — June 2013

On Monday, May 27, 2013 while operating a busy radio channel you received a report of a moving vehicle into an occupied parked vehicle. Following the collision, the driver and passengers of the moving vehicle fled the scene on foot. Shortly after, in the same vicinity there was a report of an armed robbery. Within moments an officer from a neighboring district reported being in pursuit of a vehicle traveling at a high rate of speed and blowing traffic lights.

During the onset of these incidents it was not clear if any or all of them were related. Without hesitation you were able to focus and discern which officers were responding to which emergency. You assisted officers in sorting out CAD and case numbers, once it was determined that there were two related incidents and one unrelated incident.

The radio channel became a cluster of events. The events ended with all suspects in custody related to the vehicle hit-and-run, and two suspects at large in regards to the robbery of a smart phone. The victim of the robbery was located and medically treated.

Makulata, you are always observed proactively dispatching and maintaining channel control. You are being acknowledged for these incidents and the professional job you do day after day. For being selected Dispatcher of the Month we are able to offer the following:

- Parking in the “Employee of the Month” space for the month of June 2013
- One-hour off, with Shift Manager approval
- Employee of the Month" engraved pen and key chain
- See's Candy Gift Card

As Time Goes By

By Paul Chignell,
Legal Defense Administrator

There is a series of protections as well as detrimental language in California law and in contracts that both protect and place in harm's way classes of public employees. It is, therefore, important for San Francisco police officers to be aware of these situations so you may act accordingly during your course of employment with our law enforcement agency.

Long Time Concern

A concern that police officers have experienced for quite some time is the understanding that when an officer makes a mistake, that mistake should not jeopardize an officer's career forever. Modern disciplinary standards will embrace the concept of progressive discipline, i.e. that the punishment should fit the crime, that repeated mistakes shall result in additional punishment, and that the salvaging of an officer's career, even if he or she makes a mistake, is an important consideration. Observers have also noted that many officers who commit a transgression that deserves some form of punishment never get in trouble again. Therefore, San Francisco Police Officers' Association leaders have recognized that the ramifications of administrative punishment should not follow an officer around for his or her entire career.

Remedy In POA Contract

The most recent Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) between the City and County of San Francisco and the San Francisco Police Officers' Association (POA) contains language written by our union and negotiated between both parties that addresses the concerns of long term ramifications of punishment by the Police Commission and/or the Police Chief. Article II Section 67-74 specifically allocates a time period for discipline to be utilized for purposes of promotion, transfer, or special assignments. This language is an important component of an officer's redemption for staying out of trouble.

Reprimands And Suspensions

Under the MOU, if you suffer a written reprimand from the Chief of Police for misconduct and two (2) years has elapsed, you may petition to have that punishment sealed so that the matter cannot be used against you for promotion, transfer, or special assignments. Moreover, if you have suffered a suspension of any length and five (5) years has elapsed, a similar petition can be made to have that action sealed as well.

Procedure

If you are a dues paying member of the POA, all you have to do is send me a copy of the paperwork designating your punishment and I will submit a letter to the Department to start the simple process of sealing these documents only for the purposes specified, i.e. promotion, transfer and special assignments.

Thank You

A big thank you goes to Mr. Ben Houston, Human Resources Manager of the Staff Services Division, who facilitates the sealing of these records when he receives the requisite material. And, of course, a thank you goes to the POA negotiators as well as the City negotiators who agreed on this important language in our current MOU.

Russ Gordon will return next month with more stories of dumb crooks and great police work.

Ask Mike...the Retirees' Corner

By Mike Hebel
POA Welfare Officer

Q I have been reading all this stuff about Gary Delagnes in the past few issues of the POA Journal. He receives lots of praise and kudos. You always tell it straight. Was he really that important and deserving of all this attention, especially for us retirees?

A The answer to your question is a resounding YES! Retirees in particular — and those expecting to retire within the next few years — owe a great debt of gratitude to Gary Delagnes. His era of POA leadership set the benchmark for union accomplishment. It will be very difficult, especially in these economic times, to match the accomplishments of the Delagnes and the Cunnie/Delagnes tenures at the POA. Here is why.

Gary was the longest serving POA president thus far. Since the SFPOA's incorporation in 1946 there have been 26 police officers who have served as its president from Matt Carberry, it's first, to Marty Halloran, its current president. I have been so fortunate to have worked and served with thirteen (13) of them, as a Board member, Secretary, and now as the Welfare Officer, starting with Lee Marelli in 1968 to Marty Halloran in 2013. In my judgment it is Gary Delagnes who, amongst these 26, has produced the most distinguished record for advancing the terms and conditions of employment for San Francisco police officers — from wages right on through to retirement benefits. This is a view shared by Paul Chignell, the POA's Legal Defense Administrator, who also served the POA with distinction for 21 years in various capacities. The accomplishments during Gary's tenure from March 2004 to May 22, 2013 will be long remembered and shall most certainly endure as this association continues in its mission to protect and advance the interests of its membership.

Served in the company of heroes

Gary entered the SFPD in 1978. He will tell you, with genuine enthusiasm and animation, about his experiences at Central Station and in the Narcotics Division. His self-expressed greatest life achievement was becoming a San Francisco police officer. He says it was his privilege to serve so long in the company of so many heroes.

Before speaking about the huge, immense, and gargantuan legacy created by Gary during his two (2) terms as POA vice-president, and three (3) terms as president, it is fitting to acknowledge those who were intimately connected with this magnificent team: Marty Halloran and Chris Cunnie, as well as Kevin Martin, Steve Johnson, Jack Minkel, Tony Montoya, Chris Breen and Ray Shine.

I want to tell you about what I call the "Four Numbers."

When explaining this awe-inspiring and noble legacy, I usually present four (4) numbers. They are: 92, 1, zero (0), and 14.

Number "92" was the ranked place of the San Francisco Police Department in wages paid to California police officers at the beginning of Gary's involvement with the POA. First place ranking at that time was the city of Gilroy — most distinguished for its garlic production rather than its public safety issues.

Then there is the number "1" (one) — the number that the SFPD ranks today amongst police departments in the United States in wages paid. That is — during Gary's POA career he played the commanding role in moving SF police officers from number 92 in the state of California to number 1 in the USA in wages. How many of us truly appreciate the significance of this accomplishment?

The third number is "Zero". More precisely that number is a minus $837,000. At the beginning of Gary's involvement with the POA, this was the state of its treasury — a minus $837,000 in the red. Our auditors at the time told the POA leadership that this organization was a "going concern." While this may sound encouraging, in accountancy parlance this term means that the auditors could not guaranty another year without organizational bankruptcy.

My last descriptive number is "14" — more precisely $14 million ($14,000,000). When Gary stepped down as POA president on May 22, 2013, this was the net worth of the SFPOA! Gary played a commanding role, with the assistance of his able treasurers Jack Minkel and Marty Halloran, in pulling the us from the very edge of organization bankruptcy to one of the nation's best-funded POA's. How many of us truly appreciate the significance of this accomplishment?

Vision of a $100,000 retirement benefit.

Gary, a graduate of St. Ignatius High School and the University of San Francisco, was certainly familiar with Proverbs 29:18 that says: "Where there is no vision, the people perish." In my mind, Gary is certainly a leader expressing a great vision. His prime and foremost vision, expressed as a goal, was to provide for financial security, actually financial freedom, for the rank and file retiring veteran San Francisco police officer. His hope was that a retiring SF police officer would receive an annual, earned retirement benefit of $100,000. And we know that his vision, his goal and hope, was more than achieved. By July 2012 retiring police officers were enjoying an annual pension in excess of $100,000 — a benefit that Gary would always say was dearly earned by men and women who made enormous sacrifices and paid a huge price serving as police officers undergoing daily exposure to physical, psychological and emotional injury. This is one benefit the significance of which retiring police officers should both understand and appreciate.

Negotiated 6 labor contracts.

How did Gary accomplish such a feat? Well, he had a good tool bag to begin with — a bag that he helped create. Inside that tool bag was the collective bargaining ordinance of 1992, then there was later added the 2002 charter amendment creating the 3% at 55 retirement plan. Lastly, and often under-appreciated, was the general high regard to which San Francisco police officers are held by the people of this city. With this tool bag in hand, Gary and his team negotiated six (6) labor contracts, or MOUs. With each contract, Gary's team garnered the wage and retirement benefit structure most admired by police associations and unions throughout California and the US. It is neither hyperbole nor hubris to acclaim this accomplishment. It is simply a fact. Gary's negotiation team members repeatedly praised him as a brilliant negotiator and strategist.

Qualities of character.

Let me now mention what I consider Gary's chief qualities of character — for in the end both their accomplishments and their character define great leaders. First, Gary is really smart. He well understands human motivation and the rewards of clever risk taking. Gary spoke to power (to the police commission, the board of supervisors, other city commissions, and state politicians) with blunt directness that was sometimes bombastic in nature. He rarely held back, but he was very effective.

Gary was always well prepared when entering negotiations. He possessed both a plan and an execution strategy. He earned the respect of those he dealt with; he never demanded it. He was unyielding in his belief that SF police officers deserved his support and assistance, quality wages and benefits, and his friendship in times of personal trouble.

Self-sacrifice is also an appropriate attribution to Gary. In 1992, he was promoted to the rank of inspector. He made the decision to go no further up the ranks. He often told me that he could not fully and unqualifiedly represent POA members if he was also concerned with protecting and advancing himself in the organization. The retirement benefits that he now receives are based on the rank of Inspector, nothing higher. I say thank you Gary for that huge sacrifice on behalf of the POA.

National presence.

As you can probably tell, I am a big fan of Gary Delagnes and his accomplishments. My biggest disappointment for him is that he consistently failed to receive the full measure of recognition and respect from many POA members that his accomplishments on their behalf truly warrant. Yet, I have seen first-hand the respect, admiration, and esteem that he receives from the leaders of this nation's largest 50 Police unions. Quite a contrast.

Gold standard of accomplishment.

Within the 67-year history of the SFPOA, Gary Delagnes surely is one of the handful of giants upon whose accomplishments the organization now so securely stands. It is my personal belief that he is the giant of those giants. Future generations of POA leaders will certainly use his 3 terms as president as the gold standard of accomplishment.

Chief's Corner

June is in the books. In addition to numerous grammar, middle, high school, and college graduations, June 2013 may go down in history as the month with the greatest number of academy/promotional graduations and member retirements in the history of the SFPD. As we congratulate all those mentioned above and wish each of them "the best" in their respective futures, we are preparing for a crazy, busy summer. We have a host of recently promoted lieutenants and sergeants and newly hired officers replacing our outgoing "legends." And with this, comes a great learning curve, one that, if done right, will put us on a positive path into a very bright future for the best Police Department in the country.

The phrase "we need to do more with less" is for the foreseeable future more like "we need to keep doing what we have been doing (which has been a lot) with less." Despite being down 300 officers, the hard work of the rank-and-file, along with our community partnerships and the heroic work/skills of the doctors at SFGH, we close out the first half of the year with a record low 21 homicides. Although one homicide is always going to be too many for us to accept, record lows do not come along very often and should be acknowledged.

Now July is upon us, and this month marks the true beginning of what will prove to be, maybe, our busiest summer yet. As I write this, Pride Weekend is upon us. We will have little rest between the planned festivities, including Pink Saturday and the Pride Parade, with an unprecedented attendance expected due to the recent landmark decision of the Supreme Court, and the traditional events of the 4th of July.

The activities of the 4th, coupled with the America's Cup events that are already underway, will be a challenge to manage because, again, a record number of residents and visitors alike will be here to enjoy our Nation's birth and to watch one of the most brilliant firework displays in the north state. But I know we will do it (seemingly) effortlessly as always. With the increase in spectators comes an increase in alcohol consumption and the potential for a variety of crimes such as robberies, and of course, the prevalent crime de jour — cell phone thefts. With more vehicles crossing the bridge, we will have an increase in traffic flowing through our streets, leading to frustrated motorists and more collisions, hopefully mostly non-injury fender benders.

Although the above and more are the probabilities, each of us can make a difference in how the story (summer) ends. We can leave a positive impression that will last a lifetime for our residents and guests. During your day-to-day duties, I ask you to take the time to stop and help whoever/however/whenever possible. Don't ever think it goes unnoticed. I get calls and emails regarding the "class" (professionalism and demeanor) of our officers all the time. Keep up the good work — as you always seem to do!

In addition to special events, July marks the first full month our children are out of school for the summer. In many cases, despite our best efforts to engage our young people, some "at-risk" kids have little to do around their homes leading to the potential for problems. Such is the reason, we see violence involving youngsters tick up annually in July and August...what can you do to buck this trend so that this summer we do not see the traditional bump up.

As a Department, in addition to our directed patrol activities, we have ramped up our efforts to provide positive activities for our City's youth. The newly formed Youth and Community Engagement Unit has put together a great layout for all kids for the summer. With the assistance of the SF Police Foundation, and by partnering with business and community groups, we are able to offer paid employment to hundreds of teenagers throughout the summer. What does this mean to us? These kids will be engaged, learning new skills, and will be off the streets out of harm's way. We need to be engaging them at every opportunity we get — these can be the cops of tomorrow.

We will continue to lose many officers to retirement throughout the rest of the year. As you already know, we have academy classes in process, but these recruits will not be "dialed in" to how to be a cop soon enough to help with the crunch over the next six months. It will be extremely tight out there due to the fewer number of officers on the street. I ask you, please, as we get the job done, look out for each other, back each other up, help out with the runs on the boards (even if they are not in your sector), and roll by your partner even if there is no request made. Senior lieutenants and sergeants, we just promoted 45 new supervisors, take them under your wing and get them trained, just as someone did for you when you got promoted. Veteran officers, reach out to the "newbies", share your experiences, your "tricks of the trade," so they can say, "I learned from the best."

In summary, in spite of our short numbers, we continue to deliver great things. We are getting smart phones integrated into the field (making it much easier for our officers to do their job) and we are partnering and engaging with our community more than anyone can ever remember. Our clearance rates are good (we can be better), homicides are at an all time low, and we are solving many cold cases. Let's make this a time (the arrival of smart phones for Ops and Spec Ops) when we commit to taking our good report writing and investigations to the next level of being even better reports and investigations as a way to give our District Attorney's Office their best chance at increasing conviction rates (juries are tough in this town) which translates into more criminals off the street for a safer city.

Together, we can continue to achieve great things not only in 2013, but over the course of each of our careers. You are SF's Finest...I know I wear the phrase out but you are who you are.

Be Safe Out There

The San Francisco International Airport is policed by the SFPD. The Airport is a much different post than any of the District station assignments. The type of duty and the various details available at the Airport have intrigued many San Francisco police officers. Only Central Station ranks higher on the P1 list of officers wishing to change assignments. The airport's peninsula location also makes assignment there attractive to our members who reside in San Mateo and southern Alameda counties. # Khan Academy: Free Online Math Help for Kids (and their Parents!)

By Tom Feledy
Retired SFPD

If you have a kid who needs help with math, there is now a free, online resource that can help your kid learn. Since 2009, a former hedge-fund manager from Boston named Sal Khan has been posting short 15-20 minute videos on YouTube that are lessons in math, from basic algebra to calculus. These videos have become so popular that about 4 million students use them each month.

Besides Math, there are now lessons on Physics, Biology, Astronomy, History, Economics, Computer Science, and Test Prep for the California Standards Test, SAT Math, and GMAT. And in partnership with Stanford University, there are even lessons in field of Medicine,

The videos look simple. All the student sees is a blackboard where colored writing appears, along with Sal's voice explaining what's going on. The video never shows his face, just the blackboard. Sal believes this makes it easier for the student to focus on the subject. It feels like he's sitting next to you showing you on paper how it works.

Sal Khan's efforts in tutoring math started in 2004, when he was working in Boston, and using Skype to remotely tutor his 7th-grader cousin New Orleans, who was having trouble with her math. He started posting short videos on YouTube for her to watch, and was surprised when other people started using them for their kids as well, and writing him all sorts of encouraging comments about how effective they were.

So in 2009, Sal Khan quit his hedge-fund job and set up a desk in a closet in Silicon Valley to start a non-profit that would provide "a free world-class education for anyone, anywhere." Then Bill Gates started using them to tutor his kids and telling others about how great they were at various talks. That got Sal Khan a whole lot of attention. Shortly thereafter, he got funding from Gates and also Google to expand his non-profit and possibly change the way math is taught in America.

The Los Altos School District is now using the Khan Academy to replace lectures and text books. They "flip" the classroom by having kids watch the lectures at home, and then come to class to do exercises — what would traditionally have been their homework — using the Khan Academy website. Teachers in the classroom can use the Khan Academy dashboard to monitor student progress in real time, allowing them to personally assist those students who need their help the most during each class session.

East Side Prep in East Palo Alto is doing much the same for kids without computers at home. They stay open in the evening so kids can watch Khan Academy lessons in areas where they need help, before going to class the next day.

To find out more about Khan Academy watch the 60 minutes story, <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9kh60v5PxMk>, and then go to their website, www.khanacademy.org , You can log in as a parent or a teacher, or if you are the learner, log in as yourself. (There is no maximum age limit to using the Khan Academy.) As Sal Khan likes to say, it's "a free world-class education for anyone, anywhere."

As new President of BALEAF, I would like to acknowledge former President Jo-Ellen Radetich, who is the surviving sister of SFPD Officer Richard Radetich, who was assassinated in the line of duty in 1970. Jo-Ellen has recently left BALEAF to work with PAL. I thank her for all her hard work and wish her well.

As the new President of BALEAF, I would like to introduce myself. I am the surviving daughter of deceased SFPD Sergeant Tom Blackwell #1903. On January 3, 1994, my family, friends, and my father's fellow officers experienced a devastating and catastrophic event when Tom committed suicide. My father was a very loyal officer who served 26 years in the Department: he adored his family and loved being a cop. I have been on the Board of BALEAF since 2008 serving as Vice-President, and I'm honored to be serving as President. We are a Board consisting of the wife of an Officer and the son of another Officer who were killed in the line of duty, the daughter of an Officer who experienced a catastrophic event, retired Officers and active members of Law Enforcement.

BALEAF was founded in 1999 by former members of SFPD and it's Behavioral Science Unit. Dr. Al Benner, Dr. Forrest Fulton, SFPD Lieutenant Lynette Hogue, Sister Lillian Repak, and Chaplain Mike Ryan wanted to form a non-profit organization that could provide support to members of law enforcement and their families who have had members killed in the line of duty, have been seriously injured, or who have experienced a catastrophic event or illness. They began reaching out to survivors such as myself and Mrs. Marilyn Rosekind, whose husband, SFPD Officer Barry Rosekind, was tragically killed in the line of duty in 1958. A small group was formed to assist families and agencies through out the Bay Area and BALEAF (Bay Area Law Enforcement Assistance Fund) was founded. Since then, I'm honored to announce that we have assisted 32 Law Enforcement agencies and with two relief efforts. We have provided financial aid in a total of $566,724.00. Since 2006, BALEAF has provided $23,000 in financial grants for individual law enforcement members to attend the West Coast Post Traumatic Stress Retreat.

We are very excited for the 10th anniversary of Law Enforcement Night at the Giants game on Tuesday July 23, 2013. All proceeds from ticket sales will benefit BALEAF and the California Police Officers Memorial. We are also very excited to have AAA on board as a sponsor. For every ticket sold, AAA will give $5 to benefit both organizations. Tickets are available at the POA and are selling out quick. Stop by our table at the Mariposa Yacht Club before the game: we will have all our new logo items for you to see, and donations are greatly appreciated.

On behalf of myself and the Board of BALEAF, I would like to say thank you to Chief Greg Suhr for his incredible support of the Bay Area Law Enforcement Assistance Fund. We would also like to thank members of the POA and President Marty Halloran for their undying support of this organization.

As a survivor and as President of BALEAF, I could not be more proud to be a member of this organization.

SFPD Wilderness Program Spring 2013

By Michael Rivera,
Wilderness Adventure Program

Greetings. We have come to the end of what has been an amazing half of the school year for 2012/2013. Since January, we have provided a total of 33 adventures with 730 participating students and 42 officers. They have included backpacking, day hiking, overnight camping and sailing.

By now we should already be into the summer program that will include day hiking, river rafting and kayaking trips.

Here are some of the photos from these adventures as well as artwork from some of the 2nd graders that we serve. I hope that you enjoy them. Have a great summer.

Navy SEAL Rorke Denver to visit the Bay Area

By Paul McHugh

A star on the U.S. Navy SEAL teams arrives soon in the Bay Area. Rorke Denver acquired his status an old-fashioned way: he fought to win it, by a code he has embraced in full. Recently, a few other SEALs, after serving their nation well, chose to then serve themselves by seeking fame and fortune in a way that ignored promises made to the service. But Denver, a 14-year vet, served the brotherhood by hewing to channels and procedures when he played a lead role in the 2012 hit action movie, “Act of Valor,” then published a memoir, Damn Few — Making the Modern SEAL warrior, (four weeks on the New York Times best-seller list in spring). Commander Denver will appear at Kepler’s Books in Menlo Park on the evening of July 9; at Books Inc. — Opera Plaza on July 10; and at the Commonwealth Club on July 11. Among other topics, he plans to talk about the rough and vigorous training that produces an effective SEAL, principles of leadership that can apply in every situation, and the role of special ops in present and future warfare.

Q: Rorke, you grew up in Los Gatos, in the Bay Area. How did that background shape you?

A: The Silicon Valley phenom was still getting underway in the 70’s and 80’s, but it already had set a tone. Almost any accomplishment was possible, as long as you were intellectually ready to jump in there, be creative and compete. This is a hyper-bright part of the world, and I couldn’t help but feel inspired.

Q: And how did California at large nurture you?

A: Oh, I rambled all over the place with my dad and brother, fishing on the Klamath, camping and skiing in the Sierra, working and playing on ranches south of San Juan Bautista. I really found my center through intense physical activity. Playing water polo on a championship team in high school was huge, and I went on to compete at championship lacrosse in college.

Q: Sounds ideal.

A: Big parts of my youth weren’t so easy. I was hyperactive, probably would be diagnosed with ADHD today. I struggled with math, and still have problems with numbers today. Let me put it this way — when I was on active duty, I made sure I was not the one to call in grid coordinates for an air strike.

Q: How did you decide to join the SEALs?

A: My senior year in college — I was a fine arts major at Syracuse — my dad sent me a copy of Winston Churchill’s My Early Life. And it felt like Churchill was talking right to me, about the importance of doing service to earn your citizenship, about taking one’s place in the fighting line. As I say in my book, my first thought was, where do I sign up?

Q: Over your 14 years and 200 missions with the Teams, you have fought against drug cartels in Latin America, defended citizens from rampaging mobs in Africa, and confronted jihadis in Iraq and Afghanistan. How does one handle the stress of combat?

A: To start with, guys in the SEAL brotherhood are warriors, they stress over things like not doing a job well, letting a teammate down, or failing to complete the mission, not the physical danger. We train so intensely, and to such an extreme degree of realism, that moments of actual fighting become just a natural response, it’s what we’ve trained to do. Beyond that, it varies from person to person. One thing we all do is tactical breathing. You inhale slowly to a count of four, hold for a count of four, and exhale to a count of four. A few iterations of that, and you’re pretty much guaranteed to bring your heart-rate down.

Q: You not only commanded a Team in combat, you wound up in charge of basic and advanced training on the base at Coronado. Any tips you can provide on leadership?

A: Many books out there talk about character, which is fine. But it’s not enough to be, you also have to do. My number one thing? Develop judgment. Evaluate a situation and make a good choice, and you’ve got a better chance of attaining a good result. Another huge element is trust. If your folks don’t trust you, there’s little you can do to get past that. But establish it, and it goes both ways. You empower them to do a job without micromanaging – which is you trusting them back. How do you build it? Set an example. If you want your people to look sharp in uniform, be the sharpest one in the line. If you want them to be early, you be the earliest. If fit, be the fittest.

Q: Even though you were a college athlete and on SEAL Teams, both famed as hard-drinking, hard-partying groups, you reveal in Damn Few you’ve always been a teetotaler. Why?

A: In my youth, I saw talented men and women completely derail their lives and the lives of their families through alcohol. I decided not to touch it. Sometimes I feel jealous of those who can enjoy a glass of fine wine with dinner — it looks like a good pairing. But I need to acknowledge that mine is an intense personality. If I drank, I don’t think I’d turn into the jovial, garrulous type of Irishman. I’d be more the mad and brawling type. It wouldn’t be good.

Q: The U.S. military seems intent on allowing women to join the Special Forces. What’s your opinion on that development?

A: The brotherhood of SEAL Teams is a living entity that few understand. We may be gentlemen around our wives and civilians, but once among ourselves it gets rough and Spartan real fast, with hard jokes and constantly soaking each other in toughness and fire. My opinion is that that spirit just won’t come out of a coed locker room, and we must think long and hard before we do anything to impair it. Proceed with caution. Maybe the way to go is to make an all-female tactical unit, see how that works out first.

POLICE-FIRE Post 456 News

By Greg Corrales

“Perhaps I should not insist on this maneuver, but it is my style, my way of doing things.” — Napoleon 1813

At the June Post 456 meeting, the post officers were elected for 2013-2014. Congratulations to Mike Edmond who was elected Commander. Gary Gee was elected 1st Vice Commander and Bill Wakefield was elected 2nd Vice Commander. The remaining positions are Adjutant — Greg Corrales, Finance Officer — John Scully, Chaplain — Jeremiah Morgan, Historian — Greg Corrales, and Sgt-at-Arms — Bill Parenti. The membership was effusive in their thanks to Peter Mellett who did such a stellar job as Commander for the last two years. Elected as Delegates to the Department of California 95th Department Convention in Palm Springs were Mike Edmond, Jeremiah Morgan, Rene LaPrevotte & Greg Corrales.

In the July issue of The American Legion Magazine, it is reported that thirty-eight years after they lost their lives in what is regarded as the last battle of the Vietnam War, 13 U.S. service members came home in May. Fragments of their remains were laid to rest together, in one casket, at Arlington National Cemetery.

“They may be gone, but they’re back on American soil,” said Marian Boyd of Norfolk, Va., whose son, Marine Pfc. Walter Boyd, was among those remembered at the service. Families of the 10 Marines, two Navy corpsmen, and one Air Force chopper pilot gathered with surviving veterans of the operation and others to pay homage.

The May 15, 1975 mission to rescue the crew of the merchant ship SS Mayaguez off the coast of Cambodia turned into a deadly 14-hour battle. Forty-one Americans — the last 41 names on the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Wall — died in the battle that ultimately led to the safe return of the merchant ship and crew. The 13 buried at Arlington in May were on board a CH-53 Sea Stallion helicopter that was shot down. The Joint POW/MIA Accounting Command conducted no fewer than 10 recovery efforts between 1991 and 2008 to find and retrieve the remains of the 13 who went down. DNA testing confirmed the last of the fallen men, Marine Pfc. Daniel A. Benedett of Seattle, in January. Welcome home. Rest in peace comrades!

Those of us in law enforcement are often confronted with injustice. A report by NBC’s Fort Worth affiliate, however, raises injustice to a whole new level. It has reported that accused Fort Hood killer Nidal Hasan has been paid more than $278,000 since his November 2009 shooting rampage, which killed 13 and injured 32 others.

“Under the Military Code of Justice, Hasan’s salary cannot be suspended unless he is proven guilty,” according to the Army’s response to an NBC 5/KXAS-TV investigation. To add insult to injury, soldiers wounded in the shooting “are fighting to receive the same pay and medical benefits given those wounded in combat.” The Army has refused to classify the Fort Hood shooting as a terrorist attack and thus has not categorized survivors’ injuries as “combat related,” according to KXAS.

Government Vacation Rewards, an entity specifically designed for government employees and military personnel to save money on their vacations has been named an authorized provider to the American Legion and is offering a travel discount program to Legionnaires. The discount is the same offered to active-duty military service members.

“The new Member Discount Travel Program powered by Government Vacation Rewards is a great way for Legionnaires to save money on travel expenses, including many additional discount offers for excursions, golf clubs and ski resorts that other programs don’t provide,” says Greg Roth, director of Membership Support Services at the Legion’s National Headquarters in Indianapolis. “The program truly offers the whole vacation package from airfare to hotel to excursions — a one-stop shop.”

There are multiple ways that Legionnaires can save on vacations with the new program:

Government Vacation Rewards offers the most military discounts on travel anywhere. Get military cruise exclusives, hotel coupons, resort discounts and more.

Instantly save up to $150 on cruises and resorts with Reward points.

Earn Reward Points for every dollar spent on airfare and car rentals to use toward even more savings.

Visit www.govvacationrewards.com/americanlegion to create a free account and learn more about how to save money while traveling, or call (866) 691-5109 to speak with a customer service representative or expert vacation consultant who can assist in planning a trip.

The Associated Press recently reported that a bomb-sniffing dog that did nine tours in Afghanistan was laid to rest at the Michigan War Dogs Memorial. A funeral service for Mina was held in Lyon Township. He died at age 13. Mina’s service included a flag line and taps. In lieu of a 21-gun salute, a chorus of trained dogs howled on command. The Michigan War Dogs Memorial is run by a nonprofit dedicated to educating the public on the role dogs have played in the U.S. military.

San Francisco Police-Fire Post 456 seeks every veteran in the SFPD, SFFD, and the SFSD to join our ranks. I can be contacted at gc1207@comcast.net. I look forward to hearing from you!

Using CLETS

By Officer D. Chui

It’s interesting to look back at our Department and see how far we’ve come when it comes to technology. As the Agency coordinator for the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System, known familiarly as CLETS, I have been fortunate to see the positive changes that have occurred with CLETS throughout the years. Some of you may remember that CLETS has been in existence for over forty years. For the longest time, inquiring into CLETS data remained the same, using DOS language, and complicated commands. When we got the Level II web-based interface, inquiries were made simpler through the use of preformatted masks that did the work for us.

Another recent achievement was passing the State DOJ CLETS audit. This was all due to the diligence of the members of our Department, who made sure we were in compliance with the Federal and State mandates. This was not always the case. In 2001, we were advised by DOJ that we had not kept up with recertification training, and that our documentation was insufficient. They had threatened to pull our access to CLETS if this was not remedied. Sergeant Scott Edwards, an officer at the time, was tasked with training the entire Department. He accomplished this task, and got us back on track. Since 2004, the SFPD has incorporated the CLETS recertification training as part of CPT (Continuing Professional Training). We are proud to say that every member has been trained and recertified in CLETS, from the Chief of police to the civilians that are employed by the Department.

In the next few years, as technology advances to incorporate more applications to access CLETS, we will see faster and more efficient ways of gathering information using state of the art devices. It’s not too farfetched to say that things you thought you’d only see on Star Trek will be implemented into devices used for law enforcement. We can already see some of them in use today.

A few simple reminders when using CLETS:

- CLETS is for law enforcement purpose only. It is granted to users who have the “Right & Need to Know”. If you query CLETS for information, make sure you are able to articulate your need to know.
- Never attach CLETS information to any documents (refer to department bulletin 13-074)
- Do not use any personal devices to collect CLETS data without the approval of the SFPD.
- Cross shred or dispose of CLETS documents in the department confidential bins when you no longer need the information.

Academy recruits learn the CLETS system in the Academy computer lab.

POA MAIL

Editor —
GIFT FROM THE HEART

It is with great pride that I write this letter.

For those of you that know me I can be a bit stubborn at times wanting to do everything on my own but this time I was unable to.

I am a perfect example of what not to do. If you are told that you have high blood pressure, fix it. Don't put it off, fix it. I didn't, and I thought that cutting back salt, lowering my fat intake and the rest of the BS would work. It didn't, and I stroked out. I guess we are not bullet proof or even worse, stroke proof. So I am trying to say, watch your health and stick around for a while longer. Between that stress of this job coupled with the way we eat, it's amazing that more of us aren't having problems.

For those of you that are supporting the Catastrophic Illness Program, I say many thanks. This program is invaluable as are the Officers that are running it. This program has the power to reach out and help fellow Officers when they need it the most.

You helped when help was needed and for that, my family and I would like to say thank you. Stay safe and God bless.

Bud Massey,
Muni Response Unit

Dear members of the San Francisco Police Department and members of the San Francisco Police Officers Association —

On behalf of my mother Rosemary, and on behalf of my brothers Mike, Steve, Tom, and Jim I wish to express our sincere appreciation and tremendous thanks for the many kind condolences offered to the Hal-loran family after the passing of my father Coleman. The outpouring of care and concern was overwhelming and very much appreciated. Your thoughts and prayers did not go unnoticed by my family and will not be forgotten.

I would like to specifically thank Chief Greg Suhr and his command staff, members of SID/Arson Task Force, members of the Narcotics Division, the staff of the SFPOA, and my brothers and sisters from the fighting 165th. Your unwavering support during this difficult time made things more bearable.

I would be remiss if I did not mention the members of the Traffic Company who provided the escort for my father's funeral possession. These men did an outstanding job with limited resources on that day. Their professionalism is a credit to our department and their service that day was a fitting send off for my dad. Again, many thanks.

Fraternally,
Marty Halloran

Dear SFPOA —

Thank you so much for your very generous donation to our family. We are so grateful to all of you at SFPD for your continued support.

Thank you,
The Galaviz Family

Dear POA Members —

I want to thank everyone for your support and loyalty. The best decision I ever made was to become a

San Francisco Police Officer and I will miss my second family a great deal. I always tried to represent you with integrity and honesty and I hope that even those who may not have always liked me at least respected me for the passion I brought to the job. I can't think of a better way to spend the last 35 years. I have the utmost respect for our profession and what we do on a daily basis. I made a lifetime of friends and walked in the shadow of heroes my entire career. You are the best at what you do and I will miss you all.

Thanks again and God bless you.
Be Safe.

Dear POA —

Thank you very much for the financial contribution the association has made to assist with the first ever wheelchair basketball game between the members of the San Francisco Police Department and the Golden State Road Warriors. The event was successfully staged and all participants of the game and attendees were highly impressed with the overall conduct of the event. Cathay Post #384 in particular, is appreciative of the close relationship our two organizations have enjoyed over the years. The proceeds from this event will go toward existing scholarship programs currently established by Cathay Post #384.

I would like to express my personal appreciation for your assistance. If there is anything that I can do to assist you with projects in the future, please don't hesitate to contact me. Thank you.

Sincerely

Dear President Halloran —

Please accept my sincere congratulations on your appointment as President of the San Francisco Police Officers Association. I wish you all of the success you deserve.

I am writing to let you know that my term as BALEAF President expired a few months ago, and I have transferred my leadership skills to the San Francisco Police Activities League as their Fundraising Chair. (SFPAL) <http://www.sfpal.org/>

My late brother, Officer Richard Radetich, was one of the first SFPAL cadets, and coach, and as such, I have a deep personal interest in SF-PAL. The 43rd anniversary of Richard's murder is today, June 19th.

Please let me know if I can be of assistance to you in any way, and thank you for your support of me while I was BALEAF President. With every good wish to you.

On Behalf of the San Jose Police Officers' Association Charitable Foundation, I would like to take this opportunity to express our warmest gratitude to you for your generous donation of $500 to our annual scholarship program. With your donation and donations from others we awarded college scholarships to 7 deserving students in our community who were in desperate need of help. It was wonderful to partner with you on this worthy program and we hope we can count on you next year.

Dear SFPOA —

I would like to thank you and your association for your generous gift to 'Swing and a Prayer' golf tournament. Our event was a huge success, and that event would not have been possible without your support. These funds will assist the Little Sisters of the Poor in continuing the excellent care they have provided for the elderly at Saint Anne's Home for so many years. Your kindness is so appreciated and our residents are so thrilled that your organization takes such an interest in their lives.

Thank you again for your kindness.

Thank you for your contribution to support the rebuilding of Larsen Playground! Your donation will allow future generations to continue

Dear SFPOA —

Thank you so much for your generous sponsorship of $1467. We appreciate your financial contribution, which supported fundraising efforts of the 2013 SFPD Ball, held on Thursday, May 16, 2013.

Inferno

By Dan Brown
Reviewed by Dennis Bianchi

Like many best-selling authors, Dan Brown need only publish something new and the public snaps up copies in a manner that would make you think the book was being given away, quality of content undetermined. Mr. Brown’s new crazily paced thriller, Inferno, is a prime example of that phenomenon. I confess to being eager to read Inferno, but not because I am a fan of Mr. Brown. Rather, I am very interested in most all things Italian and there are few people or icons more Italian than Dante Alighieri, the author of The Divine Comedy, of which The Inferno is but one of three books from that epic poem.

My interest was also piqued by the setting, Florence, Italy, frequently referred to as the birth place of The Renaissance, or as it is called in Italy, Il Rinascimento. Mr. Brown didn’t disappoint the reader when it comes to being a great travel guide and historical adviser. If there is a way to edit out most of the nonsense posing as a plot and keep the descriptions and directions to reach some of historically important and beautiful spots in Florence, Venice and Istanbul then the reader would have something worthy, a book to take with you the next time you visit any of those cities.

Mr. Brown also attempts to inform the reader of some of the contents of Dante’s Inferno. He doesn’t do this in a strict academic manner, but in a way that is entertaining, even humorous at times. Some readers will be surprised to discover which level of hell Dante placed different sinners, and whom he described as being in L’Inferno. For attempting to increase awareness of Dante and his work he deserves credit and praise. He also raises an important subject, the over-population of the world and how our numbers are growing exponentially without proper planning as to how to deal with this explosion.

After that I find it difficult to understand what the buzz and excitement is about. Of course, when reading a novel one should suspend one’s sense of disbelief, but this story was beyond my ability to do so. The author has brought back Harvard professor Robert Langdon, expert of symbols found in ancient artifacts and literature who was featured in The DaVinci Code. Langdon is again teamed up with a young beautiful woman whose I.Q. is staggering and education impeccable. The plot is designed to be fast-paced, but instead is more akin to a toy plane being controlled by a six-year old on a sugar rush: wham, bam, here and there, no discernable point, just rushing around. Any follower of Mr. Brown knows of his success in turning his books into movies, so the temptation is to conclude that this book was written with the same goal in mind. Unfortunately, the end result is less like a movie and much more like a video game.

Mr. Brown can put together some fine sentences and paragraphs, but in this book there are too many unintentionally humorous concoctions. Early in the book an assassin enters a hospital, shooting a doctor and clearly intending to follow that up with ending Mr. Langdon’s life. Langdon then awakens in this hospital and has no recollection of how he got there or why. But the above described young beauty, an M.D. in attendance and in the middle of the gunfire, is described in this manner: “She knew it was probably just the adrenaline, but she found herself strangely attracted to the American professor. In addition to his being handsome, he seemed to possess a sincerely good heart. In some distant, alternate life, Robert Langdon might even be someone she could be with.” That is compartmentalizing on a grand, and unbelievable, scale.

The story contains private armies of men in black uniforms popping up everywhere. Their use of drones seemed ominously real, based upon recent revelations that the United States Government has used drones in this country to spy on citizens. Maybe some of the action I found over-the-top is not unrealistic. That is what Mr. Brown has been good about in the past: creating in the reader the thought that maybe this could happen. If you are a big fan of Dan Brown, or you are looking for a travel book of Florence, then you will likely enjoy Inferno. I found it more akin to Dante’s second book in the trilogy, Purgatorio, a place or time for penance for wrong-doing. The book may suffice.

The End Of Your Life Book Club

By Will Schwalbe
Reviewed by Dennis Bianchi

The author, Will Schwalbe has worked in publishing , most recently as senior vice president and editor in chief of Hyperion Books. He has also been active in digital media, as the founder and CEO of Cookstr.com; and as a journalist, writing for various publications including The New York Times and the South China Morning Post. He is on the boards of Yale University Press and the Kingsborough Community College Foundation. The End of Your Life Book Club is his tribute to his mother, a moving account of her last several months alive as she dealt with pancreatic cancer, and how they formed a two-person book club along the way.

Mr. Schwalbe makes clear that he has cared about books his whole life, and gives credit for that fondness to his mother. As a child his mother would read to him every night before sleep, no matter how tired she may have been from a long day at work. In an interview posted on Amazon.com he relates the following:

But what I remember most is the way Mom made us feel that she was sharing something she loved with us, not completing a chore or performing a ritual. (Though I’m sure there were many nights when she was exhausted and would have loved to be in bed herself and fast asleep.) And when we shared the books, we also shared discussions about them...

Later, I would start to read to myself of course. But it was the nightly reading with Mom that helped me become a reader – and probably pushed me toward the career in book publishing. From Mom, I learned that there’s a public pleasure in books as well as a private one; that sharing books you love and getting others to read them can create a powerful bond, not just between a parent and child, but among thousands or millions of strangers.

First, I would like to state my criticism of the book. This family is not much like the majority of families in the United States. They attended private schools and Ivy League colleges. Mary, Mr. Schwalbe’s mother, was a woman with immense energy but also prestige within international organizations. The focus of her energies was refugees throughout the world. She served as an electoral observer in the Balkans, was shot at in Afghanistan, worked in Darfur and was in charge of enrollment for at least two Ivy League colleges. My criticism of such, if it is criticism, is that this family had opportunities well beyond the average American family. And I felt Mr. Schwalbe failed to understand that he was writing a book that would be read by millions of people far outside that class. It wasn’t a smugness I felt, but a lack of awareness on his part.

After being diagnosed with pancreatic cancer, Mary Schwalbe was informed that the cancer could be treated but not cured. She began a series of chemotherapy treatment that lasted much longer than the doctors believed her life would last. Her son, the author of this book, began accompanying her to the chemo treatments. They had always spoken to each other about what they had read recently, but that evolved into making suggestions of books to one another. One might say they accidentally formed this “book club,” as there was no plan or format. They were always fairly close, but these moments and the books changed their dynamic and brought them even closer. As Mr. Schwalbe puts it: “we could still share books, and while reading those books, we wouldn’t be the sick person and the well person; we would simply be a mother and a son entering new worlds together.”

The book relates a son’s love and feelings of obligation to his mother, as it relates a fascinating life lived giving of oneself to others. It is also a very good collection of other books. I recommended this book to my brother with the caveat, “Be careful. This could cost you more money than you had planned on buying books you haven’t read but feel you should.” Among the many titles they read and discussed together are: Wallace Stegner’s Crossing to Safety and Russell Banks Continental Drift, top-selling popular books from recent times. But T. S. Eliot’s Murder in the Cathedral comes from a different era as does Volpone, by Ben Johnson. These are but a few of the titles of books they read and talked about. There is a complete alphabetical listing of titles and authors at the back of the book, which I found valuable. The End of Your Life Book Club doesn’t go into much detail about the numerous books they read together. Rather, the central subject or selected phrases are used to convey why the book was important to them. From the book The Lizard Cage, by Karen Connelly, the author’s mother, Mary, quotes, “Whatever beings there are, may they be able to protect their own happiness.” Mary explains the phrase with, “even when there is no control over outside circumstances, there may still be the choice to move towards happiness instead of clinging to helplessness.”

In recent past reviews I have mentioned authors who want to help us understand how to live our lives. This book is somewhat of that genre, but more clearly it is a book that shows us how literature can also help us die with dignity and grace.

A Short Review Of An Older,
Yet Timely, Civil War Book

The Killer Angels

By Michael Shaara
Reviewed by Dennis Bianchi

This July marks the 150th Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg. Publishers are releasing new books about that horrible, bloody mess that took place on July 1, 2 and 3 of 1863, a battle that changed the war greatly. My brother-in-law, Dave Hamilton, recently retired from the Utah National Guard at the exalted rank of Sergeant Major. He was the consummate military professional. He gave me the book The Killer Angels and told me that it is required reading at The United States Military Academy at West Point. I began reading it immediately. Two days later I was through.

Using private letters and military documents from the combatants, including Generals Robert E. Lee and James Longstreet, Mr. Shaara has written a fact-based novel that doesn’t blink at the sight of war. This book was awarded the Pulitzer Prize in 1975. I can see why. Some Southern historians have criticized the book, as Mr. Shaara seems to blame the Southern defeat on Robert E. Lee and his disregard for the advice of General Longstreet. I’m sure that Mr. Shaara knew he would not be warmly received in the South by criticizing Robert E. Lee in any manner but he stood fast to his interpretations. Only after the Pulitzer Prize piqued a movie interest, and the movie “Gettysburg” was released, did it become number one on the New York Times Bestseller List.

He was also the author of For the Love of The Game, a great baseball novel that was published posthumously. Michael Shaara died just short of his sixtieth birthday. In his youth he was both an amateur boxer and a police officer.

If you have read Killer Angels before, you might give it a re-read in conjunction of the anniversary. For others reading this review who would like to get an idea or a sense of the Civil War, I highly recommend it.

Investing for Your Pleasure: How Being Happy Pays Dividends for Life

By Edwin K. Stephens,
The Stephens Group

The great pleasure in life is doing what people say you cannot do.
— Walter Bagehot-Literary Studies

It matters not how long we live, but how. — Bailey-Festus

Is it better to buy something that will make us happy and enjoy ourselves today, rather than hope for a better tomorrow through deferred gratification?

Answer: It is better to create balance in your life and strive for both personal happiness and future prosperity.

The Happiness Factor

Mr. Peter N. Stearns is the provost and a professor of history at George Mason University. He wrote on The Happiness Factor as it applies to people being productive in the Harvard Business Review;

Why write about happiness when so much of the global economy is still in a funk and people are manifestly unhappy across the world? Because emerging research from neuroscience, psychology, and economics makes the link between a thriving workforce and better business performance absolutely clear. Happiness can have an impact at both the company and the country level. And the movement to measure national well-being on factors other than GDP could be game changing. As we know, what gets measured gets managed. We've learned a lot about how to make people happy. We'd be stupid not to use that knowledge.

Although Professor Peter N. Stearns delights in the happiness factor to make people more productive, it is important to note that a primary human drive is to enjoy oneself today rather than save for the future. We like to enjoy ourselves. Let's face it, it is more fun to spend rather than save. But the decisions you make today will determine the situation that you will find yourself in the future.

There is nothing wrong with making a frivolous purchase, e.g., a purchase that you desire like a motor home or jet skis. But this may not be a purchase which is planned for in your family budget. In the short term, you are quite happy with this purchase. However, the impact of that purchase may compromise your near and future obligations for college expenses, insurance premiums, retirement plan contributions, and other discretionary expenditures. Since the Great Recession of 2008 American households are just beginning to recover and people's attitudes toward making discretionary purchases is improving with the slow growth of the nation's economy.

Recovery of American Wealth

On 6/6/13, Mr. Christopher S. Rugaber and Bernard Condon, Associated Press business writers noted that the Great Recession of 2008 cost Americans $15.6 trillion dollars in wealth.

In 2013, America as a whole has regained all the household wealth it lost to the Great Recession and then some, thanks to higher stocks and home prices. Household wealth, or net worth, reflects the value of assets like homes, stocks and bank accounts minus debt like mortgages and credit cards.

According to the Federal Reserve United States household wealth jumped $3 trillion to $70 trillion in January-March quarter this year. That topped the previous peak of $68 trillion in the third quarter of 2007, just before the recession began. Mr. John Calverley, head of macroeconomics research at Standard Chartered Bank said, "People feel wealthier, so they're happier to spend more. There is also a broad confidence effect. It's not just in terms of consumers. Business see a higher stock market and feel more confident about investing."

It should be noted that Economists worry about wealth accruing to richer households, the wealth effect may be muted. That is because affluent Americans are less likely to spend additional wealth than middle — and lower — income Americans spend. However, richer households drive a disproportionate amount of consumer spending. So their recovered wealth will still likely boost overall spending.

For Americans as a whole, higher home values and stock prices have helped create a "wealth effect." This occurs when rising wealth gives Americans the confidence to spend more. The economy benefits because consumers drive about 70 percent of the U.S. economic growth.

The Middle Class Recovery

On 6/8/13, Mr. Zelkadis Elvi of Yahoo Finance in his column "Just Explain It" asked, "How much money do you have to make to be considered middle class? Well, it depends upon whom you ask." Recently the income range has been described as between $32,000 and $64,000 a year, between $50,000 and $122,000, and between $20,000 and $102,000. Meanwhile, the income inequality gap is growing. The wealthiest one percent of the United States population is now 288 times richer than the average middle class American family. And, rising college costs have put more pressure on middle class families. Students will graduate this year with an average of $35,000 in total loan debt.

However, there are signs of a middle class recovery. Both the Dow Jones Industrial and Standard & Poor's 500 are at all-time highs. That is good news for small investors and people who have 401(k) or IRA accounts. When asked about their financial situations, middle class Americans have mixed feelings. Their opinions are negative over the short term. But compared to ten years ago, 44 percent say they are more financially secure than they had been while 42 percent say less.

Investing for Your Pleasure

Overall, it is important to create a balance in your life and strive to make purchases that will provide you with personal happiness but not at the expense that borrowing takes away from your ability to consume in the future.

It is very important to be happy in life. And, one should purchase those items that may provide you with some pleasure. But the goal in life is not to spend in excess and essentially rob yourself of a future investment opportunity. Instead, exercising a little deferred gratification today can go a long way in providing for a better life tomorrow.

Detroit To Terminate Police Command Union Contract When It Ends

Forwarded to the Journal
By Gary Delagnes,
Retired SFPD

The City of Detroit has given the Detroit Police Lieutenants and Sergeants Association notice that its contract is being terminated when it ends July 6. In a letter to union president Mark Young, attorney Lamont Satchel, the city's director of labor relations, pointed out the contract will be terminated when it expires. Orr's administration is not required to renegotiate pay and benefit terms as city employee contracts expire. Under the emergency manager arrangement, Orr can replace the union contracts with "city employment terms," or CETs, that include adjustments to pay and benefits for employees. Nowling said adjustments, if any, are unknown at this time.

Of the union's 460 members, about 200 were hired more than 25 years ago and are eligible to retire, he said. Others are asking him to help them find opportunities at other departments. Nowling said Orr expects to sit down with union representatives before issuing CETs for each organization.

After Pay Cuts, Detroit Faces Exodus Of Police, Firefighters

Forwarded to the Journal
By Gary Delagnes,
Retired SFPD

After years of pay cuts and reduction in their ranks, Detroit police officers and firefighters in the next week face a tough decision: Retire now or put their careers in the hands of Detroit emergency manager Kevyn Orr, who has the power to unilaterally cut their pay and benefits. At least several dozen police officers and firefighters will retire early as they try to lock in benefits before Orr imposes new labor contracts, union officials told Reuters. A large flight of veteran public safety workers could cause disruption in a city facing some of the nation's highest violent crime rates and a rash of arson fires.

Mark Young, president of the Detroit Police Lieutenants & Sergeants Association (LSA), said 200 of the 500 officers he represents are eligible to retire. He said many are "on the bubble" regarding a decision to retire before the union's contract expires next week. By retiring now, members of the LSA and the Detroit Firefighters' Association could hope to lock in retirement benefits under their existing contract before Orr could impose cuts to pay and benefits — a power granted him under Michigan's emergency manager law.

The 1,900-member Detroit Police Officers Association has a contract that extends through June 2014. Its members took a 10-percent pay cut last July. Mark Diaz, president of the police officers union, said the union five years ago represented about 3,000 active officers.

New York City Police Unions Livid Over Bill On Racial Profiling

NEW YORK, NY — New York City police unions are lining up to blast a bill they say would handcuff them from doing their job.

"The community should be outraged that this legislation is out there," Roy Richter of the Captains Endowment Association said Wednesday.

Richter is shown in a provocative ad that features police brass wearing a blindfold.

"What that will result in tens of thousands of lawsuits. And even if the city won each one, and you know they wouldn't, that would blow a massive hole in the city budget," said Councilman Peter Vallone (D-Queens).

Councilman Brad Lander (D-Brooklyn) is one of 30 co-sponsors of the bill.

"They know they're misrepresenting the legislation," Lander said. "Police officers will continue to be able to

---

"When a description comes over, rather than saying, 'a male white wearing jeans and a tee-shirt,' now it comes over 'jeans and a tee-shirt,'" said PBA President Patrick Lynch."

It's a campaign to defeat a bill that would expand the ban against racial profiling to include profiling by "color, age, citizenship status, gender, sexual orientation or housing status."

"Racial profiling is already illegal and should be. What this does is handcuff the police officer on the street. When a description comes over, rather than saying, 'a male white wearing jeans and a tee-shirt,' now it comes over 'jeans and a tee-shirt,'" said PBA President Patrick Lynch.

Opponents also say the bill will make cops timid, because it allows people who believe they've been profiled to sue.

use skin color and gender and age and height in suspect descriptions. What doesn't work is profiling people based solely on they're being one race, being one religion, being gay, living in public housing."

Mayor Michael Bloomberg is siding with the unions in opposing the bill. He said if it passes he will veto it.

The vote could come as early as next week.

The police union ads will run in newspapers Thursday. Sponsors of the bill said the ads are false and should be pulled.

Cleveland Disciplines 12 Officers In Deadly Chase That Ended In 137 Rounds Being Fired

CLEVELAND — Cleveland police fired a sergeant and meted out demotions and suspensions Tuesday for a car chase last year that involved five dozen cruisers, 137 rounds of ammunition fired by 13 officers, and the death of two people who, it turned out, were probably unarmed.

A captain and lieutenant were demoted, and nine sergeants got suspensions ranging from one day to 30 days. They and the fired sergeant will appeal their punishment, according to Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 8, which represents police supervisors.

Dozens of cruisers became involved in the chase without permission from superiors and with little direction, according to a state report released earlier in the year. The episode damaged the department's relationship with residents and must be repaired, Chief Michael McGrath said at a news conference Tuesday.

"That means we have to work a little harder on our end," he said.

In March, the U.S. Justice Department said it was opening a wide-ranging civil rights investigation into the use of force by Cleveland police, looking beyond the chase to analyze several years of excessive force claims and police policies, training and procedures.

But the upheaval from the Nov. 29 chase alone is likely to spread through the ranks. More than 100 patrol-level officers involved in some way face disciplinary hearings beginning in July.

And 13 officers who fired their weapons as the chase ended in a blocked-off school parking lot in East Cleveland face a county grand jury investigating possible criminal wrongdoing.

The chase began around 10:30 p.m. when an officer thought he heard a gunshot from a car speeding by the police and courts complex in downtown Cleveland. A parking lot attendant thought it might have been a car backfire, a theory endorsed by the driver's family.

The officer jumped into his patrol car, made a U-turn and radioed for help.

The chase went through crowded residential neighborhoods, then reversed course, headed east onto busy Interstate 90 and through parts of Cleveland, and eventually into East Cleveland.

Then the gunfire erupted, 137 rounds. Driver Timothy Russell, 43, was shot 23 times and passenger Malissa Williams, 30, was shot 24 times.

The union has said the shootings were justified because the driver tried to ram an officer. No weapon or shell casings were found in the fleeing car.

Of the 276 officers on duty that evening, 104 were involved in some way in the chase. Sixty police cars were involved.

Police don't know why Russell didn't stop. Russell had a criminal record including convictions for receiving stolen property and robbery. Williams had convictions for drug-related charges and attempted abduction.

Mayor Frank Jackson, trying to defuse complaints that the deaths were racially motivated executions by police, promised to punish officers who operated "outside the box" of police procedures.

Ohio Attorney General Mike DeWine said in February the chase resulted from leadership failures. "Command failed, communications failed, the system failed," DeWine said.

A state report noted the driver was legally drunk when he became involved in the chase, and both people in the car tested positive for cocaine. DeWine said they likely had been smoking crack.

Many of the officers who became involved told investigators they were frightened and feared for their lives, the state report said.

The sergeant dismissed Tuesday, Michael Donegan, briefly participated in the chase last November but pulled off, parked his patrol car and failed to supervise his officers, police officials said.

Charges against the demoted officers and the suspended sergeants included failing to supervise officers under their command or being unaware that officers were involved in the cross-city pursuit.

Lt. Brian Betley, president of FOP Lodge 8, called the disciplinary actions heavy-handed and the dismissal extreme. Betley said dismissal usually is reserved for drug use or drinking on the job or criminal wrongdoing.

One suspended sergeant could face harsher punishment. The chief sent the case to the city safety director, who has broader disciplinary powers. The sergeant will get a new hearing, Betley said.

Paul Cristallo, an attorney for Russell's family, said after the disciplinary actions were announced that it was naive to think Russell stopping his car would have guaranteed a good outcome.

"I just think that's unrealistic. I think that's unreasonable. They were fleeing for their lives," Cristallo said. He declined to comment directly on the disciplinary actions.

Powerful New Laser Provides New Options For Laser Vision Correction

Vision correction procedures have made it possible for police officers to perform at a very high level. In hostile situations, where glasses and contact lenses are not reliable and impaired vision could mean the difference between life and death, LASIK and other vision correction procedures have become more than a choice. They have become a necessity.

San Francisco police officer undergoes Laser Vision Correction with EX500

Very motivated to have laser vision correction, the 29-year-old San Francisco police officer works nights and wore contacts and glasses. “Without them my vision was impaired,” he said. On duty he wore contacts but knew they could fall out, just when he needed to draw his weapon to protect himself and others.

The officer recently elected to have laser vision correction at Pacific Vision Institute in San Francisco and his timing was perfect. PVI is the first eye clinic in California to receive the recently FDA approved WaveLight EX500, the world’s fastest, most precise and safest excimer laser for vision correction — a laser that virtually eliminates symptoms seen with previous technology such as nighttime halos and glare. And the vision outcomes with the EX500 are permanent and stable.

Dr. Faktorovich performs PRK with EX500 laser on the medical news segment KTVU Chanel 2

Uniquely shaped laser beam improves night vision

Dr. Ella Faktorovich, Director of Surgery at Pacific Vision Institute says what makes this new laser such a significant advance is the actual shape of the laser beam — something called a flying spot cylindrical beam.

The EX500 laser is the only excimer laser where the laser beam is shaped like a cylinder. The beam shape, for the first time in the history of excimer lasers, now allows complete energy delivery and effective treatment of BOTH the center and the periphery of the cornea. Vision is accurately corrected and, for the first time in the history of LASIK and PRK surgery, the cornea maintains its natural shape, virtually eliminating the risk of glare and haloes sometimes seen with older technology. The cylindrical laser beam represents a major milestone in the evolution of LASIK and PRK.

“With EX500,” Dr. Faktorovich explains, “the prescription is corrected and importantly the shape of the cornea is maintained. The incidence of adverse effects such as glare and halos, for example, are significantly reduced and patients can achieve excellent vision both day and night.”

LASIK with EX500 laser

Patients achieve 20/20 vision quickly after PRK

For patients, like the police officer, who are better candidates for PRK laser vision correction than LASIK, EX500 has significant advantage over older technology. Vision typically recovers slower after PRK than after LASIK. The uniquely shaped laser beam of the EX500 laser allows the corneal shaping to be done in such a way that healing after PRK is very fast. In the studies conducted at PVI, most patients achieved 20/20 or better vision within a week after their procedure — a much faster vision recovery than the several months it may have taken with the older technology

This improvement has eliminated a huge barrier for PRK patients. “Besides avoiding halos and nighttime glare”, Dr. Faktorovich says, “the more precise shaping also shortens the healing process. For some patients, cutting weeks off the typical recovery time of a month or longer to experience fully corrected vision.” For a busy police officer, this was especially important, as it was a reason he delayed having the procedure.

Correcting both eyes took just over 5 minutes. The officer said it was painless. “It definitely changed my life — it’s unbelievable. Within 2 days of my procedure I had 20/20 vision, I had no down time, I was back to work within 2 days of my procedure. I can’t begin to explain how much this will improve my life and my work”, said an elated officer.

Ultra-fast treatment time leads to extremely precise results

In addition to the beam shape, the EX500 treatment speed (500 Hz vs 400 Hz and slower with older technology) is the fastest of any laser currently FDA approved in the United States. This reduces corneal drying which results in unprecedented precision. Vision remains stable

Fastest eye tracker in the world improves safety and accuracy

The unique laser pulse shape and treatment speed are synchronized with the fastest eye tracker in the world (1050 Hz vs 400 Hz with the older technology). At this tracking speed, the laser tracks 10 times faster than a human eye is even capable of moving.

The WaveLight EX500 is delivering significantly enhanced vision performance benefits to all patients; LASIK and PRK, with virtual elimination of glare and halos, permanent stable vision correction, and for the first time, greatly improved vision recovery for PRK patients. It is a major milestone in Laser Vision Correction.

Making Home Affordable Program Application Deadline Extended

Extension through December 2015 Will Provide Struggling Homeowners Additional Time to Access Sustainable Mortgage Relief

By Keith Rockmael

Like so many of the other homeowner programs (e.g. The Mortgage Debt Forgiveness Relief Act) the HAMP program recently got the green light for an extension. The HAMP extension runs until December 31, 2015. The program was set to expire on December 31, 2013.

The good aspect of the extension is that the extension includes Fannie and Freddie back loans, not just Treasury, and that they set the extension for more than one year.

Despite the fact that banks continue to push away from loan modifications and more toward short sales and deed-in-lieu, homeowners in distress can take some solace in the fact that this opportunity still exists for them to save their home and create a more sustainable situation.

Since its launch in March 2009, about 1.6 people have gone through the loan modification program and nearly 1.3 million homeowners have been helped directly by the program.

Consider that the re-default rate on loan modification looms high. Some of the loans that never should have been made saw high re-default rates of modifications. Look at the re-default rates for loan mods made in the first quarter of 2009, and those numbers show re-default rates in the range of 85 percent to 90 percent.

However, things continue to improve. Modifications made more recently, such as in early 2011, show improved performance with average re-defaults after 12 months approaching 40 percent to 45 percent.

In any case, homeowners can inquire directly with their servicing lender about a loan modification however in most cases homeowners will have a less frustrating process by enlisting one of the local non profit counselors to advocate in their behalf.

Any officer in need of a referral to a reputable loan modification counselor or non-profit agency can feel free to contact me at Keith@Resourcerock.com

Cadets on the March!

If you are anywhere near the Police Academy this summer, you'll see them on the march! The 2013 class of SF PAL Law Enforcement Cadets reported for duty June 17 and our 33 participants are having a great time. The summer program is modeled on the basic training academy for new police recruits and is designed to give cadets physical conditioning, job and social skills and leadership training. In the fall, SF PAL Law Enforcement Cadets will have the opportunity to participate in additional training and serve as interns at SFPD stations or bureaus. Thanks to Capt. David Lazar, Officer Edie Lewis and the team at the Police Academy for all their great support of SF PAL Summer Cadets.

Play Ball! Junior Giants Take the Field

SF PAL Junior Giants Baseball is more popular than ever — enrollment in our program has increased by 50 percent over last year! The 650 kids participating this year receive all gear and materials completely free of charge from the Junior Giants Community Foundation, and will learn about violence prevention, reading, anti-bullying and good sportsmanship as they are having fun playing baseball. And that's not all! Last week the Junior Giants Community Foundation donated 100 tickets to the Giants vs. Marlins game on Thursday, June 20. Junior Giants participants were also featured on an episode of the Live Well Network's Food Rush, featuring celebrity chef Ryan Scott.

Junior Giants gave a thumbs up to chef Ryan Scott's healthy makeovers of ballpark fare on the Food Rush program. To view the episode, go to: <http://livewell-network.com/Food-Rush/episodes/Fun-and-Tasty-Ballpark-Snacks/9127169>

Sadly, for lack of enough volunteer coaches, SF PAL had to turn away 150 kids who wanted to play, and we hope to recruit more coaches next summer. Capt. Dan Perea, who is coaching Junior Giants T-Ball this year, says he's having an incredibly rewarding experience and would encourage any officer to volunteer as a coach. "As police officers we see a lot of trouble in the world. [Coaching] means you have a hand in creating a happy experience for a young child," Capt. Perea told SF PAL. We're tremendously grateful to him, as well as Officer Felix Sung (Ret. SFPD) and Officer Nelson Ramos for taking the time to coach SF PAL Junior Giants teams.

Got Wheels?

The SF PAL van is heavily used to transport equipment, coaches and players. Donated almost 20 years ago, the PAL van is increasingly decrepit and we're looking for a new(ish) one. Do you know of a gently-used 10-12 passenger van that might be available as a donation to SF PAL? Donations to SF PAL are fully tax-deductible and go to a great cause!

Raise a Glass at Lucky Strike and Benefit SF PAL

On Giants home game days, restaurant and bowling alley Lucky Strike will donate $1 to SF PAL for every beer sold in its outdoor beer garden! Come out, buy a beer, root for the home team and support SF PAL. Lucky Strike is

Football Season is Coming!

SF PAL Seahawks Football players are hard at work conditioning for football season, which is just around the corner. Seahawks players are able to use St. Ignatius College Prep HS facilities — track, weight room and other resources, including coaching — to train for the upcoming season. SF PAL is hugely grateful to St. Ignatius and SF PAL Board Chair Rick Bruce for his help in arranging SF PAL's access to the facilities.

Meal Planning Part II: What should I eat?

By Rich Thurman

Often times we aren't taught growing up what to eat for a healthy and balanced diet. So when we become working adults the question still remains...What should I eat?

A good question to ask is, what shouldn't I eat? Well, the simplest answer is to ask, would I feed my dog Cheetos, Doritos, sugary cake snacks and pastries every day, etc? If you answered no to that question then I ask you, why are you eating these foods each day? If this stuff isn't even good enough for the family dog, then why is it a staple of your diet? Now, sure you can have one of these items as a treat from time to time, but these are not appropriate for a balanced and complete, healthy diet.

As working adults it's tough in the workplace with so many food temptations. It's also tough when you're out of the office all day or on the beat, to find suitable food options. Just like "you are what you eat", your body is a product of what you feed it. Feed your body junk and guess what? Tah

Dah....Your body builds its cells and structures from junk and scraps. Think of it as a car. If you were building a car that could repair itself, would you give it faulty equipment to repair itself or give it high quality pieces? So technically, you really ARE what you eat.

Going through long periods without caloric intake is devastating to the metabolism. Eating large quantities of sugar, processed foods and calories is also damaging. So portion control and healthy choices are in order.

The ultimate goal is to keep a steady level of insulin and energy levels in the body. By providing the body with the right types of carbohydrates, high fiber, good quality protein and essential healthy fats, you can set your body on the right track to becoming healthier.

Protein is absolutely necessary for your diet. Proteins consist of amino acids, which are the body's building blocks. Your body is constantly in a process of breakdown and repair and having the right amount of amino acids available in your body is essential. Some good sources of protein for your body are nut milks (check for allergies), eggs, lean meats, poultry and fish, as well as quinoa and actual nuts. Green leafy vegetables are a great source of amino acids, which are the building blocks of proteins. Each day your diet should consist of a mixture of these foods.

Carbohydrates are absolutely necessary, so don't let anyone convince you to remove carbohydrates from your diet. Low carb diets can be detrimental and difficult to maintain. You should never be on a carbohydrate restriction unless prescribed by a doctor and even then the only carbohydrates that should be limited are simple carbohydrates from heavy amounts of bread or rice, packaged goods, refined sugars from soft drinks and juices, candies and snacks.

The carbohydrates from fresh fruits and vegetables are a must. These complex carbohydrates are essential for your energy. The additional fiber in fruits allows for a slower uptake of the sugars so that your body's insulin levels don't spike sending you through bouts of hyperactivity and then into low groggy periods. Check glycemic index. Low glycemic index fruits like berries are an excellent choice. Fiber is essential for keeping cholesterol low and also contributes to a healthy digestive tract and healthy arteries; Not to mention all the essential vitamins, antioxidants and nutrients that are found in fruits and vegetables that contribute to a well balanced nutritious diet.

Essential fats are also necessary and can be obtained from nuts. Almonds and walnuts would be two of the highest sources of essential fats among nuts. If you can't have nuts then try seeds. Sunflower and Pumpkin seeds are good. Chia Seeds, Flax and Sesame seeds are also good sources for you. Coconut meat, coconut milk, avocados are also good alternatives and additions. These fats can also be obtained from fish like wild caught...I repeat wild caught salmon, tuna and other fish. These essentials play a major role in brain function; in particular memory, as well as the reduction of cholesterol and body fat. Including these fats in your diet is absolutely necessary.

Giving yourself healthy and balanced diet options creates a great foundation for your fitness and health life. Nurture your body and give it the tools to better cope with the rigors and stresses of life, starting at ground zero...your diet.

Nick's Notes

By Nick Shihadeh,
Journal Sports Editor

Department Softball Wrap-Up

CHECK IT OUT: The SF Police Softball league ended its season on Thur. June 13th with the A and B Division championship games taking place during the day at Silver Terrace Playground and the softball banquet taking place that evening at City Forest Lodge.

The B Division game was played first with the match-up being the SF Sheriffs (managed by Bill "Tui" Tuiaosopo) vs VRT (managed by Joe Salazar). The Sheriffs were looking to win their first championship in their history in this league, while VRT was so serious about this game that they only fielded 8 players that day. Coach Salazar was very, very frustrated receiving last minute cancellation calls with one excuse after another — sounds pretty pathetic if you ask me.

Despite being short handed, Salazar's club found themselves actually ahead by a score of 4-3 going into the 6th inning. The Sheriffs batted all 15 members of their roster and needed everyone to contribute toward a late inning rally that led to a 6-5 victory. It was a nice moment for Tui who has faithfully fielded teams year in and year out for a long time in our league, and not able to win a championship. Congrats!

The A Division Championship game would be played next with the Northern Bull Dogs (managed by Mike Tursi) going against the Mission Diablos (managed by Glenn Ortega).

Northern defeated the Central Diners in the semi-final to get there while Mission won against a very strong Bayview.

This championship was also a close affair with Northern going up early by a score of 3-0. The game stayed low scoring and actually had fantastic defensive plays on both sides of the field with it being 3-2 going into the bottom of the 6th inning. It wouldn't stay that way for long as Mission quickly got 2 runners on base with Coach Ortega coming to the plate. Ortega batting right handed was able to do an inside-out swing to send the ball down the right field line for a base hit. By the time the ball was fielded and thrown in, Ortega had himself a 2-run triple and the Diablos had a 4-3 lead. The Bull Dogs weren't able to do anything in the 7th inning and the Mission Diablos would be the champs once again.

The Diablos and the Sheriffs were able to celebrate their success at the banquet with a large team trophy presented to each winning manager by

A Division Champion Mission Diablos

Commissioner Kevin Worrell. The 2nd place teams also received a nice team trophy for their great efforts to reach the championship game. Northern's Mike Tursi was actually mature and profound (which we don't see very often) when he went to the podium to congratulate Mission for a good victory, and to comment how much fun it was to be in such a great defensive battle with them.

The rest of the night would feature the individual memorial awards being given out. The Mike O'Brien Award for longevity was given to Mike "Bugsy" Moran for his long time participation and contribution to the league for 30 years. The Brian Olcomendy Manager of the Year Award went to Bud Clinton for fielding a decent team week in and week out while running Taraval/TAC with absolutely no help from TAC.

The Layne Amiot Most Inspirational Award was given to Steve "Yeah, Yeah, Yeah" Coleman for his constant enthusiasm all season long while helping out the cause for the Bayview Pit

Bulls. The Isaac Espinoza MVP was awarded to Northern's Andrew Lucas who was very solid as usual in left field and also a terror as usual while at the plate.

A great time was had by all as Ron Dumont and his staff at City Forest did a great job as usual. Thanks go to them along with Marty Halloran and the POA for sponsoring this league that continues to promote camaraderie amongst the troops who play in it. Commish Worrell should be thanked for doing a great job running department softball that isn't easy to do; and, in turn he wanted to thank Judy Card of the Daly City Park and Rec for treating us better than our own park and rec does. He also wanted me to mention National Trophy for a good job with plaques and trophies and the Bus Stop for their putting up with (I mean sponsoring) the Northern Bull Dogs.

That's all for now...stay well and safe and So See Ya next month...

U.S. Police/Fire Games — San Diego

Letter to Sports Editor

Hey there Nick,

I wanted to tell you about the SFPD Seals softball team that I played on down in San Diego for the National Police/Fire Games back in June. We started out with a group of 14 ball players that set out to make a difference in the “open division” of the tourney. The team included: Bob Nevin, Mark Fraize, Andrew Lucas, Dave Colclough, Doug Tennenbaum, Keith Murphy, JR Guin, Phil Gordon, Eric Reboll, Chris Olsen, Tony Carrasco, Luis Archilla, Steve Spagnuolo, and myself.

We started play on Sat. June 15 and continued on through Sunday and eventually to Monday, where we actually had a chance to play for gold if we continued winning games. Unfortunately, we were hot, started running out of gas, lost some games and had to settle for the bronze medal which still isn’t too shabby out of 20 teams.

I want to thank my teammates for all their efforts down there with all the “glitter” in the air. I also want to thank everyone for putting up with Tennenbaum who was acting like a “prima donna MLB pitcher” over the three days. Enjoy the pics and keep up the good work....

Always,

Retiree Retrospective

Inspector Hobert Nelson

By Ray Shine, Editor

Editor's note: Several weeks ago, Hobert Nelson, a retired San Francisco Police Inspector, contacted me. He told that he enjoyed reading the POA Journal and keeping up on the business of the day. He also reads about of the passing of old friends in the Widows and Orphans column. Age was now testing his memory, he explained, and he wished to pass along to me a few facts about his life while his recall was still relatively keen. I encouraged him to send the information to me, along with photographs and mementos, which he did. In his cover letter, he wrote "I am looking forward to my 90th birthday in November of this year and as I look back on my life, I am amazed at the twists and turns of the journey that led me to such a great career with the San Francisco Police Department. I consider myself fortunate in many ways." What follows is a recap, drawn from the notes he forwarded to me, of the main mileposts on Hobert's journey thus far. —Ed.

Hobert Nils Nelson (Nilsson), a native of Sweden, was born November 16, 1923 and was baptized in a Swedish Lutheran Church.

In 1927, he immigrated to America with his parents, Adolf and Karin Nilsson, and his younger sister, Mai. On the night that the young family arrived in San Francisco it was Hobert's 4th birthday. He ended up that night singing a traditional Swedish song standing on the dining room table at the home of his uncle Andrew.

After arrival in America, his mother thought his name should be changed to a more American name so he became Hobert Nils Nelson. Hobert began elementary school in San Francisco in 1928 - he couldn't speak English and cried to go back to Sweden.

On February 2, 1936, Hobert's father, Adolf, mysteriously vanished. No one ever heard from him again, and the inexplicable disappearance was never solved. Now missing the head of the family, the Nelsons suffered many hardships. But Karin, now a single mother of two, was a strong woman who worked hard and kept the family safe and secure.

During this time, Hobert applied his determination and resourcefulness to assist his mother. While very young, he used to knock on the doors of neighbors asking if they had any old magazines and then would go to other neighbors and sell them for a few cents profit.

By the time Hobert was 16 years old he was working for Western Union, delivering telegrams – some of them "singing telegrams"--by bicycle for 25 cents and hour. He would do this after regular school hours and often worked until about 10:00 p.m. He saved enough money to buy a "Star" automobile for $25 even though he didn't know how to drive. He quickly taught himself and later sold the car for $35.

In 1941, Hobert quit High School to join the military after the Japanese sneak attack on Pear Harbor. No branch of the service would enlist him because Hobert was still a Swedish citizen. Hobert was frustrated, but determined. All of his friends had joined the war effort. He, too, was patriotic and wanted to fight for his adopted country, so he wrote to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and explained his predicament. He received a reply from President Roosevelt's secretary saying Hobert would hear from his draft board soon. He did in 1942, and was soon in the U.S. Army. He did get his high school diploma later, and went on to City College and San Francisco State.

Hobert had many new experiences while serving in the military. He was scheduled to leave for combat, but instead he was given a hearing aptitude test to detect different sounds. He scored a high aptitude and was sent to radio school to learn and use Morse code, which probably saved his life. Over the course of his Army service, Hobert served in England, Germany, Czechoslovakia, and France. He was honorably discharged at the rank of corporal in 1945.

Following his discharge from the Army, Hobert returned home to San Francisco. Karin, his mother, had just married Fred Mikelson. Hobert applied for a job as a cab driver the day he was discharged and was hired immediately. About this same time a friend and he decided to attend a party where Hobert met Yvonne Patton. They married in Reno, Nevada, about six months later. She was 17 (although she had told him she was 19 when they met) and he was 22. During this time, Hobert also sold furniture door-to-door in San Francisco.

In 1948, Hobert decided he wanted to try another career, so he hitchhiked to Chicago, Illinois, to take singing lessons. Now a wise war veteran wise to worldly ways, he stashed his travel money in his socks. Yvonne later took the train and joined him in the Windy City, where they lived in a small apartment while he took singing lessons and also sold magazine subscriptions door-to-door.

About this time, one of his best friends in San Francisco, Bill Maddox, a San Francisco firefighter, convinced Hobert that he should return to the city and join him working for the SFFD. Hobert and Yvonne returned to San Francisco where he took and passed the test for the fire department.

During his early years working as a firefighter, Hobert and Yvonne started their family. In July of 1948, their son, Craig Nelson was born. Four years later in March of 1952, their daughter Cathy was welcomed into the Nelson family.

While on duty one day at a local firehouse, a squad of motorcycle cops drove up on their Harley-Davidson motorcycles. Hobert decided he wanted a more exciting job so he asked his captain if it would be all right for him to try out for the police department. The captain approved and said if it didn't work out, Hobert could have his job back in the Fire Department.

Hobert took the test for the police department and passed. After the Academy training, he became a "foot beat" officer, then was later transferred into the Traffic Division. While assigned to Traffic, Hobert donned shinny boots and a leather jacket and patrolled the city streets by motorcycle for the next 12 years. He was then transferred to the Fraud Detail.

In 1966, Inspector Hobert Nelson was transferred to the Homicide Detail. He worked some high profile cases, often doing composite drawings of possible suspects, a task that morphed into an adjunct assignment as the department sketch artist. He worked on the Zebra, Zodiac, and Chinatown murder cases among others. He was written up in the newspaper as "The cop who caught the crooks with his pencil not his gun."

In 1971, while chasing a suspect who had stolen a car, Hobert took a near-fatal fall onto a railroad track. He suffered a severe abdominal hemorrhage. In the hospital, he was given several blood transfusions and nearly died. Upon his return to duty, he was transferred to the Fraud Detail. He retired from the SFPD in 1978.

Following his retirement, Yvonne and he moved to Sonoma where they had previously bought some property. They built a house with a beautiful view and put in a three-acre vineyard, which he worked himself for several years. During his retirement he obtained his private investigator license and worked some individual cases. Local police departments continued to retain his services to do suspect sketches, including one very interesting one in the late 1990's involving a man who had been assaulting and raping young women tourists. The suspect told his female victims that he was an undercover policeman. Following his arrest, several law enforcement badges were found in his possession. He had an unusual scar on his chest that Hobert had accurately captured on paper and which helped to convict him.

Hobert became restless on the vineyard and decided to go back to work. He was hired by the Sonoma County Social Service Department as a Fraud Investigator and worked as such for the next eleven years. He spent his second retirement years in Sonoma County managing his various real estate properties and other investments. In 1994, Yvonne died quite suddenly and unexpectedly.

Following Yvonne's death, Hobert returned to law enforcement and worked for the Sonoma County District Attorney for a few more years.

In 1996, Hobert met Olive Robinson. Coincidentally, Olive was also retired from the Sonoma County District Attorney's office, but she and Hobert had never become acquainted while working at the office. She had been very involved in the local dance clubs, and Hobert took up her passion. He enjoyed dancing, and was encouraged to try out as a cruise host dancer, a service which he performed for several different cruise lines as he danced his way around the world.

Swedish immigrant Hobert Nils Nelson became a U.S. citizen, and a retired SF policeman. He is, he writes, "American in name, language, and all."

As a U.S. soldier and a SF motorcycle officer and inspector he has had many physical injuries; however, in November he will have his 90th birthday. He can still take long walks and has an active life thanks to his friends, family, wife, the SF Fire Dept., the SFPD, the motorcycle detail and, he proudly declares, "the good old USA."

Newspaper clippings from 1975, replete with signatures of entire SFPD Homicide Detail, all storied names from infamous times.
